WOMEN OF COLORADO AT WORK DISCUSS STATE INSTITUTIONS

Denver, Sept. 28.—At the Woman's Club building yesterday the president of the Colorado Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Churchill, turned the chair over to the chairman of the committees in charge. The morning session was in charge of Mrs, Fred Dick, with the brightest of Colorado's educators on the platform. Miss Katherine Craig, the superintendent of public instruction, made an able address, which was followed by addresses by James H. Baker, president of the University of Colorado; Z. X. Snyder, president of the State Normal School; H. A. Buchtel, president of Denver University; W. F. Slocum, president of Colorado College; V. C. Anderson, president of the School of Mines, and B. A. Aylesworth, president of the Agricultural college.

The afternoon was devoted to a discussion conducted by Ellis Meredith, chairman of the state institutions committee; a talk on "Child and Animal Protectiton," by E. K. Whitehead; "Trade Schools," by F. L. Paddleford, president of the State Industrial School at Golden, and a round table conference conducted by Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker.

Dr. Mary E. Bates reported on the state Home for Dependent and Neglected Children.

"The great need," said Dr. Bates, "is a larger appropriation. The Legislature of 1905 appropriated the same amount of money for the biennial term following that the preceding legislature gave to the home for maintenance.

"The Fifteenth General Assembly achieved the distinction of having criminally crippled all of the state institutions for the vain glory of the politicians, the profit of the corporations and the favor of the mighty.

"Compel your men to go on record, indelible record, before you vote for them and place them in power where they can squander the taxes which this great state contributes in ample supply to make of our institutions models of modern institutional achievement.

"Make the state institutions an issue. The State Home for Dependent and Neglected Children needs development far more than we need a new fish hatchery; more even than we need a new $10,000 north door, or a gilded figure for the same price on the top of our capitol, or $20,000 for coyote scalps."

A report of the Girls' Industrial school was read by Dr. Josephine L. Peavy. Dr. Peavy made an appeal to the federation in the following words:

"I want to appeal to you women to make that institution a credit to the state, a real industrial school and a home for these girls, who are so sadly in need of a home and of training to fit them for life. This is a work worthy of the federation. If you will only see that the girls have as fair a chance for making women of themselves as the boys have of making men of themselves, visit the two institutions, compare them carefully and then set to work, not to do less for the boys, but more for the girls. The girls of this state should be our special charge.

"Undoubtedly the problems met with in dealing with the girls are greater and more perplexing than those met with in dealings with the boys, and yet one inexperienced woman after another has tried her hand as superintendent of the girls' school only to fail.

"See what is being done, make suggestion, know personally each girl committed by your court, and be ready when a girl is eligible to parole to help find a home for her, so that she may not go back to the old environments and temptations. Help your legislative committee to secure the passage of a maintenance law establishing a school on an equal footing with other institutions.

"In closing, let me emphasize this thought: These girls are our helpless, sick sisters. They are committed to our care, and we shall be held accountable for them."

The chairman of the committee on state, county and city institutions said in part:

"Of the educational institutions, from the State University to the School for the Deaf and Blind, we have only words of praise and appreciation. Next year there will be specific things to do. So far the one recommendation that can be made now is to work for a constitutional amendment permitting the university to hold its medical school in this city—which is done in almost all the states where the university is not located in the principal city I trust the day wil come when the state will see that there is no reason for placing the blind and the dumb in one school, save our poverty and their misfortunes. There is every reason why they should be separated and none why they should be put in one school, save lack of funds.

"In the case of the reformatory and the penitentiary, we feel that the wardens are doing all that they can, cramped for room and lack of means.

"There are crying needs at the penitentiary, but we must wait for the convening of the Legislature to answer most of them. In the meantime, there is one thing we can do. The state furnishes a discharged man with plain clothes and a small sum of money. It does nothing for a paroled man, and there are men in prison who haven't the garments or the means to come out if their paroles were given them. The Society for the Friendless, of which Judge H. V. Johnson is the president, and Rev. William Collett is the secretary, can tell you of tragedies which will touch your hearts, and if you are willing to help they can make use of your efforts for these unhappy men, outcasts, but still fellow creatures.

"We must have an asylum for the criminal insane, and if the prisoners are to come out better men than they went in, they must have employment.

"At the insane asylum they need amusement and employment. The long, bare corridors are as clean as possible; the bare little rooms are spotless, but the dull, interminable days, with nothing to do, and only a very meager little library to browse over, are enough to drive any one melancholy mad.

"The institution whose needs have received the most generous response so far is the Soldiers' Home. There are gathered there 175 men, nearly all of them old, many of them feeble and without relatives to assist them. To them we owe a debt we can never pay, and if we would show appreciation, we must do it soon. In a few years this institution will be vacant.

"Speaking of Christmas, do try and remember the man who has the heaviest Santa Claus task in the state. There are enough discarded toys and dolls that would pay for redressing lying about in this state to give the children at the home for dependent little folks a gorgeous Christmas, and Superintendent Cowan will be the most grateful man that ever wondered what he was going to put into 160 empty little stockings. They need books and pictures.

"It is not necessary to speak at length of the work of Mr. Argo, Superintendent Paddleford or Mr. Whitehead. They have spoken for themselves, and their work speaks far more loudly for them. Learn more about it, talk about it in your clubs, and lend a hand, especially to the bureau for child and animal protection.

"Of the Girls' Industrial School there is an honest difference of opinion in regard to its present condition. Not in this committee, but among many other people quite as intelligent and as earnestly devoted to the welfare of the school.

"Your committee therefore recommends that this federation notify the governor that it is in favor of the recommendations adopted by the joint meeting over which he presided; that we indorse his position, and trust that he will take such action as may be necessary to bring about the desired change in the administration of the school.

Kansas-Colorado Suit.

Denver, Sept. 28.—October 9th the attorneys for Kansas and Colorado will have a tilt before the United States Supreme Court at Washington on the question of advancing their famous water suit on the docket. Kansas is particularly anxious to bring the case to a speedy hearing and is apparently ready to take risks because it wants an opinion before the opening of the next irrigating season.

Kansas' attorneys have made a motion to advance the case for a hearing during the present term and seek to have a date set for the arguments. The attorneys have been notified to appear at Washington October 9th, at which time the court convenes in its annual session. The court has but one term a year, October to June.

Colorado's attorneys held a meeting yesterday and decided that they will resist the motion on the ground that the evidence has not yet been printed and the attorneys on either side are not prepared to argue the case.

Probably two attorneys from each side will go to Washington to present the case. Attorney General Miller will go from here and Joel F. Vaile will also probably go if he can arrange it.

Attorney General Coleman of Kansas and probably Judge Ashbaugh will represent that side.

Bent County Fair.

Denver, Sept. 28.—A Las Animas dispatch last night says: The Bent County Fair opened to-day with the largest attendance ever known on a first day. The weather was delightful and the visitors had something to entertain them throughout the day. The exhibits in agricultural, horticultural, stock, apiary, poultry and garden products surpassed anything ever displayed here before. Sugar beets weighing twenty-one pounds each, cabbages weighing fifteen pounds each, a pumpkin vine with twelve pumpkins attached, each averaging forty pounds, were but a sample of everything else.

Colorado Chautauqua.

Denver, Sept. 28.—A meeting of the Colorado Chautauqua Association was held at Boulder September 26th, presided over by Prof. Ira M. De Long. This was the annual meeting for the election of twelve directors, and amendment having been adopted providing for one, two and three-year periods, with four directors to be chosen from the number for each year.

The report of the treasurer showed that $11,800 had been received from all sources and that a balance of $1,000 is in the bank to provide the preliminaries for the next session. Last year had been the most successful in the association's life. The new board was instructed to increase the orchestra to twenty members, and to provide for a quartet of singers to appear on the platform each night when wanted.

Those elected directors are: Edwin Chamberlain and L. J. Long of Texas, C. L. Wellington of the Colorado & Southern railroad, A. A. Greenman, Eben G. Fine, A. A. Reed, J. M. Taylor, Ira M. De Long, Dr. O. M. Gilbert, J. A. Davis, G. M. McClure and Joseph Bergheim. These directors, together with Mayor L. R. Johnson, who is a director by virtue of his office, will have full charge of the next assembly.

Montana Vineless Potatoes.

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 28.—At the county fair which opened here Tuesday there is on exhibition what the inventor calls "vineless potatoes."

Some three months ago D. D. Darst, the discoverer of the new process for producing potatoes, announced that he could grow potatoes in from two to three months in a special preparation discovered by himself, in layers on top of each other and without vines. His experiments have been conducted in a box eight feet square.

In the bottom of this box a layer of Durst's preparation is placed to the depth of three inches and a number of potatoes planted therein.
